La Salle on Television

Faculty, staff, and students have been featured on several TV newscasts over the past month:

- o The Pre-College Counseling Program was the subject of a long feature on Channel 6's highly-rated morning news show on August 3. Dean of Students Nancy Brewer, Accounting Professor Jack Reardon, and a number of incoming freshmen and their parents were interviewed about La Salle's unique orientation program.

- o Ed Turzanski, Director of Government Affairs and a lecturer in the Political Science Department, was the guest on KYW-TV's Newsmakers program on August 6. He was interviewed about the U.S. decision to use the atomic bomb in 1945.

- o Fifty Resident Assistants volunteered a day of community service on August 29. TV crews recorded their activities in Hunting Park, resulting in coverage on the Inquirer News Tonight on Channel 17 and on Action News on Channel 6.

- o Moving-in day for resident students was reported on KYW-TV on September 3. The story included reference to La Salle's "largest freshman class in six years." WCAU-TV Channel 10 carried similar coverage the same day.

Dear Colleagues:

The purpose of this letter is to provide an update on the NCAA Self-Study process.

The report was mailed to the peer review team in early August. Copies are available in the library and Hayman Hall. Please feel free to communicate any observations about the self-study to me or other steering committee members.

The Peer Review Team, which will be visiting La Salle in October includes:

John R. Brazil - President, Bradley University

J. Joseph Doerr - Faculty Athletics Representative, University of Missouri, Kansas City

Barbara J. Reimann - Interim Athletics Director, American University

David T. Roach - Director of Athletics, Brown University

In addition, Garnett H. Purnell, Compliance Representative, will be the NCAA official involved with the visit. This group will meet with various members of the school and athletic community and review the self-study findings.

The extraordinary efforts of numerous members of the La Salle community continue as we proceed with this important process. Thank you for your help.

New Resources Available

During the summer months, the staff of the Community Service Programs has been busy preparing and purchasing resources for persons or groups interested in community service and issues of justice. The Center for Community Learning has many new books and publications available for browsing or borrowing. Topics include community service, racism, group dynamics, group facilitation, human rights, justice, education, etc. There are also course syllabi, books on how to integrate service into the curriculum and books with exercises for reflection.

And the Center has come out with a few publications. There are new brochures which describe the programs, a handbook for van users, a guidebook for faculty, a resourcebook for faculty, a Student Coordinator handbook, and a volunteer handbook. All of these are available for you to look at, borrow, or take with you, just contact the Center. Also, some materials are available in the Teaching/Learning Center, located in Connelly Library.

For a complete listing of available resources, look for the October issue of Community Matters.

La Salle Community-Learning Courses for Fall, 1995

This semester a number of faculty from a variety of disciplines will be offering community-learning courses. There are, of course, faculty in the Nursing, and Education Departments who will once again integrate community service into their courses. Aside from these disciplines, there are faculty in the English, Psychology, Communication, and Social Work Departments who will be adding a community service component to their course for the first time. There is also a Women's Studies course which will integrate service.

Students from these courses will be working with a number of programs and non-profit organizations. Some students will be working with Betak, a hospice in Mt. Airy which cares for persons living with AIDS. Another group of students will be working with Habitat for Humanity - Germantown Chapter to help the organization improve its outreach to the community. Other students will tutor after-school, mentor area youth and children, work in a women's shelter, work at the La Salle Neighborhood Nursing Center and at other sites.

CCL Logo

The Center for Community Learning's logo is a spider-web which has at its center the idea that through service we can build a community and breakdown barriers of prejudice, injustice and stereotypes which keep us apart.

The web joins together, and pulls towards the center, the various elements which make for effective community service. The elements are critical to building a more just society and to providing community service which meets real needs and helps to transform our world.

The first element is relationship. Through community service we can build sustaining relationships which help us be better neighbors, and allow us to meet people we may not have met.

The second element is participatory democracy. Democracy means much more than voting; it necessitates active participation in society by all members. Community service allows us to get involved, and to get to know the issues in a personal way so that we may be informed citizens. It encourages us to do more than vote - to make our voices heard every day.

The next element is that of values. The values of community service are those of our University - values of world peace, social justice, community involvement and education through action.

The fourth element is reflection. Community service without reflection can not only be meaningless, it can also cause problems. In order to learn from the experience, one must challenge his/herself through reflection.

The next element is that of learning. All community service experiences, whether curricular or co-curricular, are learning experiences. Students often discuss how their service makes what they are learning in class become much more alive and have more meaning. People involved in community service also realize how much they learn about themselves, who they are, and their values through their involvement.

The final element is justice, as community service activities must strive toward making a difference and eliminating injustices in our society and world. The must go beyond acts of charity, to become works of justice.

If you are interested in integrating community-learning into your courses, please contact the Center.

Student Life Office

215-951-1371

The Student Life Office is initiating a leadership development project. Tentatively entitled, "Silver Screen Leadership", we plan to schedule an eight week film series to be held in Backstage on Thursdays at 3:30 p.m. We want to identify films that directly or indirectly address a leadership style or leadership issue, view the film and conduct a follow-up discussion of the film.

We need your suggestions. If an interesting film pops to mind, GREAT. If you would be willing/able to conduct a follow-up discussion, BETTER YET!

It is our intention to present a series that is well-balanced in terms of styles, cultures and gender; and represents as many arenas of leadership as possible, such as government/politics, education, business, religion, athletics, military, etc.

Anything is fair game; comedies as well as dramas, satires as well as documentaries. In fact, if possible, I would like to stay away from documentaries and focus more on leadership as portrayed in main stream cinema.

Once the series is developed I will send all faculty members a brochure listing the topics and films in the hope that there may be some faculty who can use the series in conjunction with their classes. Therefore, I need to develop the series quickly. Please send your suggestions to Karen Shields, in the Student Life Office, by September 15th. Thank you

RECRUITMENT REPORT

Welcome Back!

It seems like the summer just began, yet here we are welcoming the Class of 1999 to campus. It has been a busy summer around here, with many changes to talk about. Of course, the most important information is the size and quality of the entering freshman class.

When we left you last May, we were optimistic that the freshman class would exceed 700 students. As we begin the semester, it appears that there will be approximately 730 freshmen and 175 transfer students at La Salle this year. Last year, there were 516 freshmen and 150 transfers. We are most excited by the fact that almost 80% of the freshmen have chosen to live on campus, which should add spirit and vitality to campus life.

People and Places

Over the summer, the operations of admission and financial aid were combined, and everyone moved from Benilde Hall to the Administration Center. The Office of Admission and Financial Aid is located on the second floor, with the financial aid staff in the space previously occupied by the School of Business, and the admission staff in the space occupied by Continuing Studies. Our staff is grateful for all of the hard work that was necessary this summer to coordinate this project.

There are seven new members of the admission and financial aid team. Tiffany Alois has joined the financial aid staff as an assistant director. She was previously a financial aid counselor in the Admission/Financial Aid Office at Saint Vincent College. Rebecca Walenta, a 1993 La Salle graduate, has also been hired as a financial aid counselor.

Within admission, Anna Melnyk Allen has returned to full-time duty at La Salle. Anna is an associate director of admission and coordinator of continuing studies admission. Brian Williams has joined the staff as an admission counselor after two years on the staff at Saint Louis University. Jayme Marcus and Colleen McDermott have also joined the staff as admission counselors. Jayme has admission experience at the University of Rhode Island, and Colleen has plenty of La Salle experience, having served as a tour guide for us before her graduation last May. Melissa McGinley, currently a student in the evening division, has also joined the staff as a secretary.

Campus Events

For the first time, we will host two open house programs this year. Since there were over 2,000 students and parents on campus last October, we have decided to add a second day to reduce the traffic, and to offer an alternative to families that may have conflicts. Our programs this fall will be on Saturday, September 30, and Saturday, October 21, and will run from 11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

The programs will include plenty of campus tours and presentations on admission, financial aid, Business, Arts & Science and Nursing, plus student life and the Honors Program. Full faculty participation is not essential for these days, since the Deans will be making the presentations. However, since we expect over 1,000 people each day, involvement from many members of the community would be helpful. Call Jennifer Service at extension 1500 if you would like to help.

Student Admission Representatives

During the summer we completely revised the role of students in the recruitment process. We have hired a group of students (Student Admission Representatives) who will be responsible for all of our major student recruitment activities. Over 140 students applied for these positions, and more than 70 students were interviewed either in person or over the phone. We are delighted by the group of 31 students who will work with us over the coming year (they are listed on the back).

The students were on campus August 31 for training, and we will utilize them for all of our recruitment activities. Everything from tours to letter writing and phone calls to recruiting student volunteers for on campus events will be part of the job description for our student representatives. We believe they are all excellent representatives of the student body at La Salle.

Odds and Ends

Since the fun never stops, the admission staff is ready to embark on another fall travel season. Staff members will visit nearly 500 high schools between Boston and Washington, D.C., and with the help of alumni volunteers, attend over 200 college information programs. Combined with all of the individual interviews and campus tours, plus two open houses, recruitment for the Class of 2000 (!) is well underway!

INSTITUTE FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF MATHEMATICS AND SCIENCE TEACHING

NEWSLETTER – SEPTEMBER, 1995

IAMST: WHAT WE'RE ALL ABOUT

The Institute for the Advancement of Mathematics and Science Teaching is an interdisciplinary collaboration of Biology, Chemistry and Biochemistry, Education, Geology and Physics, Mathematics and Computer Science, Nursing, and Psychology. The IAMST's goal is to improve science and math education in the Delaware Valley from kindergarten through college.

The IAMST's activities focus on three areas:

- Curriculum development
- Faculty development
- K-12 partnerships

IAMST programs seek to bring out the fun in science and math, engage students at all levels in the actual practice of science, encourage interdisciplinary exploration of real problems and technological innovation in teaching. IAMST is headed by David Smith (Director of Academic Operations) and Alice Hoersch (Director of Development), assisted by Pres Feden (Director of the Teaching and Learning Center) and two Assistant Directors to be named later. IAMST policy is set by the Policy Board: Hank Bart, Cynthia Capers, Gary Clabaugh, Rich DiDio, Dave Falcone, Nancy Jones, and Annette O'Connor.

BUSY SUMMER

Workshops, hiring, new courses, and HUD purchasing have kept us hopping

this summer! Here is a summary of some of this activity:

Earth in Balance

Hank Bart and David Cichowicz ran this one-week workshop for 11 teachers in early July. Participants learned about the environment, resources, and recycling. They visited a landfill, sewage plant, and recycling center. The teachers then planned a small community, and some even included golf courses for Hank and Dave!

Really Integrating Math and Science

Joe Merlino and Gary Clabaugh, along with other leaders, ran a two-week workshop for fourteen teachers from the (continued on back)

NAME THIS NEWSLETTER! DESIGN A LOGO! WIN A PRIZE!

This newsletter needs an imaginative name. The IAMST also needs an eye-catching and appropriate logo. We need your input for both. To encourage you, the Institute is holding a contest. IAMST will give $25 gift certificates from The Nature Company to the designer of the winning logo and to the originator of the winning name. Both should reflect the purposes of IAMST. Logos need not be finished quality - sketches of your idea will be accepted. Entries are limited to La Salle faculty, staff, and students and must be submitted by September 30, 1995.

Olney Schools Cluster. Teachers explored technology, geography, and cooperative learning strategies as they worked to integrate their math and science curricula in the context of real-life problems.

Interactive Mathematics Program

Joe Merlino, Ned Wolfe (Beaver College), and Alice Jordan (Strawberry Mansion HS) ran two training workshops for Philadelphia teachers in years One and Two of the innovative IMP high school math curriculum. Philadelphia is one of 18 sites in the nation implementing IMP.

PRIME

Once again, La Salle hosted part of the PRIME program this past summer. Thirty-nine post 7th grade minority students spent a month at La Salle in enrichment classes for math, science, communications, and computer science.

HUD Grant Activities

This summer, IAMST began to reap the benefits of the long-awaited $2.5 million grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Areta Shpon (La Salle '91) was hired as full-time Administrative Assistant, and has helped with workshop management, office organization, and HUD purchasing.

Speaking of purchasing, Holroyd 101 and the Physics lab have been upgraded with 34 new Pentium computers. Science and math departments are all in the process of securing bids and ordering a total of $1 million in new equipment for teaching and research.

New Course: IMS 150

Dave Smith, Bert Strieb, Nancy Jones, Tom McPhillips, Marijke Wijsmuller,

Sharon Schoen, and Carole Freeman met extensively this summer to plan a new math/science course, also funded by HUD, for Elementary & Special Education majors. The course will emphasize hands-on scientific explorations designed to build both confidence and competence. Drop by Holroyd 115, MW 1:30-4:30 and see what we're up to.

WHAT'S IN THE WORKS

New Digs

IAMST will be moving! We are currently in Holroyd 2A, but will soon occupy renovated space in Holroyd 112. We will hold an Open House once we move in.

Workshops

With the Teaching and Learning Center, we will be offering a series of workshops through the Academic year. Look for details in the next newsletter.

Grant Opportunities

You provide ideas and words; we help with paperwork and style. Coming up:

- Fund for Improvement of Post Secondary Education, deadline: October 16.
 - National Institutes of Health, deadline varies with program
 - NSF Instrumentation and Laboratory Improvement, deadline: November 14.
 - EPA Environmental Education Grants, deadline: October 13.

BOOZE NEWS

AOD Program
Box 821

September, 1995
X-1355

WELCOME BACK!

As the Fall semester begins, you may find several new developments in the AOD Program of interest. First, additional Internet resources have been identified which now enable the program to assist professors who wish to infuse alcohol and other drug related issues into their courses. For example, with a copy of your syllabus, an AOD sensitive suggested reading list can be generated. Such a list would identify journal articles, book chapters, and entire texts which present an AOD perspective on the topics being presented in your courses.

Using the Internet, a telnet connection can easily be made with the Project Cork database at Dartmouth University. Once into the database, a literature search can be conducted on any topic which may be of interest to a professor. A simple listing of articles, chapters, and books or a more extensive list which includes a detailed abstract of the identified citations can be generated and delivered to you in hard copy, email, or on floppy disk in ASCII or WordPerfect 5.1 text.

In addition to such a reading lists, Eithne Bearden is offered to assist the AOD Program in researching and producing a list of books in the Connelly collection which pertain to a specific course or topics addressed within a specific course. For more information about this resource to consider using AOD related examples to illustrate specific points being made in your courses, contact Robert Chapman at X-1355 or "chapman" on the HP.

COVER-FOR-A-PROF

The cover-for-a-prof program is again available to assist professors who may need to be away from campus on a specific date for professional reasons. If you will be presenting a paper or attending a conference or workshop on-campus, consider having the AOD Program take your classes for the day rather than canceling them. With as little as 2 weeks notice, a specific presentation can be designed which will both compliment your syllabus and present an AOD related perspective on the topic.

During past semesters, AOD related lectures have been presented in History, Genetics, Marketing, Advertising, and Communication courses to name but a few. For additional information or to request this service, contact the AOD Program in the Counseling Center.

ASSESSING DRINKING RISKS

A new service has been implemented by the Counseling Center to assist individuals who wish to assess their potential to develop a drinking problem. This service consists of a short initial interview where the assessment is outlined, a take-home inventory designed to address the individual's alcohol use behavior, and a follow-up session where any high risk behaviors are identified and suggestions offered on how to reduce risk in these areas.

This service is similar in some respects to reviewing one's nutritional or physical habits with an eye to early identification of high risk behaviors. Research indicates that individuals who are heavy drinkers, i.e., females who consume 4+ drinks/day, 5+ for males, and who participate in such screening activities are less likely to develop drinking problems in the future. It is important to keep in mind that this service is not intended to identify drinking problems. Rather, it is designed to identify high risk drinking behaviors which could evolve into drinking problems given sufficient time and continued use according to established high risk patterns.

For more information about this assessment service, contact the AOD Program in the Counseling Center. For those who may be concerned about the anonymity of this assessment, on-campus "house calls" can be scheduled.

GUEST EDITORIALS

Beginning in October, guest editorials, written by members of the La Salle community, will be published in Booze News. All are invited to submit a 250-300 word editorial which addresses some aspect of the confluence of alcohol and collegiate life.

October's editorial will be by Joseph Flubacher, Professor Emeritus, and entitled, "Alcohol Abuse and the Catholic University." In it, Professor Flubacher raises the question of one's moral responsibility when drinking to intoxication.

If Interested in submitting an article, direct your copy to Robert Chapman %Box 821, Campus Mail.

REMEMBER: An archive of alcohol and other drug related files exists in the WordPerfect 5.1 N:\ sub-directories "alcohol" and "drugs."

CONNELLY LIBRARY

Media Library
215-951-1295

As a result of the increasing demands placed upon Connelly Library's successful Bibliographic Instruction Program, the Library is forced to limit the use of its classroom (021, lower level).

Please note that non-library use of the classroom can be guaranteed no more than two weeks in advance. Those wishing to book the library classroom more than two weeks in advance should be aware that in the event a Bibliographic Instruction session should need to be scheduled for the same period, the Bibliographic Instruction session will have precedence, and the faculty member will be responsible for making other arrangements outside the library. If this is the case, faculty members will be contacted at least two weeks in advance, and will have ample time to secure a VCR for their own classroom. Please also note that food and drink are not allowed in the library classroom.

We have been experiencing an unmanageable demand for this room for non-library uses. Consequently, scheduling Bibliographic Instruction classes to meet the needs of a broad range of faculty in day, evening, and graduate has been disrupted. This is the only classroom on campus designed and outfitted for Bibliographic Instruction, so that using the room for simply holding a lecture or showing a video is a significant underuse of the facility.

The library staff regrets any inconvenience this policy might cause and appreciates everyone's cooperation.

If you have further questions on scheduling, please contact Media Librarian Arleen Zimmerle at x1295.

If you are interested in scheduling classroom instruction in library research skills related to a specific course, assignment, or academic discipline, please call Reference Librarian Bernetta Robinson at x1962. It is necessary to schedule instruction at least two weeks in advance.
